

GETS MUCH INTO THREE MINUTES

A New Bedford Man Gives Pointers to El Paso Boosters.

After the regularly scheduled speakers at the business men's luncheon had talked interestingly today about their subjects, the chairman introduced a man with gray hair, a red Taftian four-in-hand with a two Marat sparkler attachment and a way with him. He was, and is William J. Bullock, former mayor of New Bedford, brother-in-law of William Judd, of the Stone-Webster company.

He talked three minutes. In those 180 seconds he told them that New Bedford produced one and one-eighth miles of cotton cloth per day, had technical textile schools for the education of the cotton mill employees, manufactured silverware products by the carload, spent $5 per 1000 for the maintenance of education alone, not counting the cost of building and physical properties, told of the whaling industry of the past, the manufacturing business of the present and of the future industrial, civic and social possibilities of the New Bedford of the future.

It was a bit uncanny, this thing of having a man from a section of the stern and rock bound coast that is supposed to be 100 years behind time and still making a revolution occasionally, to come out here where boosters grow with the grassweed and tell the natives how things are done in a town that is so live that it operates its power plant from its own dynamic power.

Avoid the Errors.
"There were errors made in New Bedford that I hope you will not make here and will have to incur the expense of correcting as we did," he said. It is surprising how rapidly this city has grown with so few manufacturing industries. I advocate industrial progress for El Paso as the great city of the future southwest."

Mr. Bullock was promptly turned over to the manufacturing committee of the chamber of commerce for more of the same brand of bully business logic that he had crammed into his three minute hit-and-run talk.

Endorse Sunday Closing.
The endorsement of the Sunday closing of postoffices was given by the business men present at the luncheon after postmaster J. A. Smith had told of the plans for closing the postoffice on Sundays and the elimination of all work in the local office that was not absolutely necessary. He explained the plan that had been formulated for presentation to the postoffice department and to be made effective May 1.

This is to cut out the carriers' work on Sunday, keep the general delivery open on Sunday, make no collections from the residence districts on Sunday, but make the same collections in the business district as at present. He also explained that business men could rent lock boxes at a small cost for their Sunday mail and that clerks would be assigned to the work of sorting the mail and placing it in the boxes. For important letters that were expected, Mr. Smith explained that by leaving orders at the office on Saturday afternoon letters could be sent out by special delivery carriers by the payment of the usual special delivery fee of 10 cents.

Also by filing a request at the office by p. m. Saturday business mail would be sorted and left at the general delivery to be called for Sunday. All mail would be dispatched on Sunday the same as is done now, it was explained. The letter mail would be distributed to the boxes as at present and the newspaper mail sorted and put in the boxes as soon as possible after its arrival. By this arrangement the 40 employees of the office would be given a holiday on Sunday and the office carried on without interruption.

Capt. H. E. Van Surdam, superintendent of the Military Institute, explained the value of the institute to El Paso by explaining the good that has been done in San Antonio by the military schools there. He said that $50,000 would be brought to El Paso by the students of the institute next year if the plan were materialized and that a committee composed of Felix Martinez, A. Courchesne and C. M. Newman was going to Mexico to interest the Mexican parents in the El Paso school.

DEATH CLAIMS OLD CITIZEN AT YSLETA
Ysleta, Tex., March 30.—Pablo Duran, one of Ysleta's oldest citizens, died Wednesday morning at his residence here and his remains were interred at the Catholic cemetery on Thursday morning. Mr. Duran, who was over 80 years old, died from the infirmities of age. His wife died just a month ago. He leaves two sons, Jesus and Reyes Duran, and one daughter, Beatrice Duran, all of this place.

Capt. Farmer, accompanied by Mrs. Farmer, was here Tuesday looking over the soldiers' camp. He found everything satisfactory. The camp has been in charge of Sgt. De Priest since Lieut. Rogers' absence. Lieut. Rogers, who underwent an operation at the Fort Bliss hospital, is rapidly improving. Mrs. Milton Graves gave a children's party from 3 to 6 o'clock on Wednesday to the sixth anniversary of her nephew, Harris Dillard, of Nogal, N. M. Mrs. Graves and her husband, Mr. Graves, were served the little guests from a daintily set table. The centerpiece being a cake, bearing six burning tapers. Other decorations were sprays of peach blossoms and tiny rabbits. Each little guest carried home as a souvenir a nest of candy eggs.

DEATHS AND BURIALS.
MRS. FRANCES CHARLES.
Mrs. Frances Charles, wife of William Charles, a merchant at Steins, N. M., died under an operation in El Paso, Tuesday. The deceased was 40 years old at time of her death. She leaves a husband at Steins and two brothers in Arizona. The body was shipped to Steins, N. M., last night, where it will be interred in the family lot. Mr. Charles, who came to the city with his wife, accompanied the remains home.

JOHN DUNN.
John Dunn, a former El Pasoan, who was connected with the job printing office at one time, died Tuesday at Houston, Texas. He was the representative of a printing and job company and made his home in Dallas. The funeral was held there Wednesday. He married Miss Hattie Stevenson, of El Paso, who is well known here. Besides his wife he left two daughters.

DE LA BARRA GOES TO MEXICO ALONE

with which president Diaz has said he will not deal.

It should be said, however, that dispersal will not in the least affect their military strength. Usually they are scattered to the four winds for safety's sake and the purposes of guerrilla warfare. This will be their condition during peace negotiations, but individually they will be armed. As every man is mounted—born in the saddle—mobility is simplicity itself. They have no wagon trains and no commissary such as encumber nations of Europe. Every man can be ready in five minutes to move and 50 miles a day is only the average ride on their tough ponies.

They may disperse and doubtless will, but their military efficiency will not be affected thereby.

It is certain if the rebels are consistent with frequently promulgated principles, they will not be tricked by the Mexican government into laying themselves open to successful attack in case of sudden failure of negotiations. They may disperse to their individual homes, but such is the perfection of their mobility that without endangering their present advantages they may "lay down their arms."

They are suspicious of advances from the government because of past experiences, but there can be no doubt that the administration now is sincerely desirous of meeting them half way to end the war.

Ascona Coming South.
Juan Sanchez Ascona, secretary of the confidential agency of the Mexican government at Washington, departed last night for San Antonio to join Gustavo A. Madero, brother of the revolutionist leader. He left in response to a telegram urging him to attend the forthcoming peace negotiations.

Dr. Vasquez Gomez, chief of the Washington confidential agency, insists that if peace negotiations are to be held, they should be open and formal, and take place in Washington. The terms of peace, he said, had been variously expressed, but set forth the following in a general way:

"The resignation of Gen. Diaz and senior Corra as president and vice president of the Mexican republic, and the assumption of the provisional presidency by the minister of foreign affairs."

Public overtures for peace negotiations are to be conducted on neutral territory, preferably in Washington.

"Guarantee of reforms assured by the appointment of a cabinet half representatives of the revolutionary party and half of the old government."

"The forces of the revolution to remain under arms and be considered as forces of the various states, according to the distribution of the revolutionary forces and maintained as regular troops."

Dr. Gomez added that the election of minister de la Barra as provisional president would be welcomed as the latter always had been neutral in internal affairs and was regarded generally as a man of high character.

REBEL ACTIVITY NEAR DEL RIO
Del Rio, Tex., March 30.—It is reported that prominent Mexican revolutionists released here on bond Tuesday, crossed into Mexico last night and joined a party of 150.

Hernandez, manager of the great Trevino ranch at San Carlos, and a relative of Madero, has been placed in jail at C. P. Diaz.

DIAB MAY BE RIGHT.
From Memphis (Tenn.) News Scimitar.
President Diaz may be right if he is preparing for reforms and fighting at the same time. Rebel sympathizers who have confidence in his good faith and who are really patriots will be inclined to draw off from opposition to him, leaving only against him the self-seeking element that is in every movement, good or bad, and these latter, unsupported by the real patriots, would be an easy mark for the government, and their elimination a good thing.

THREE DISPATCHES BEHIND.
From St. Louis (Mo.) Post-Dispatch.
The Mexican insurgents have been whipped again and are now three dispatches behind the government, but coming strong.

NEW COLOR SCHEME FOR COUNCIL ROOM

The city council chamber will resemble the bridal suite in the most modern hotel if the plans of the city council as suggested at present are carried out. It is proposed to carry out a blue and white effect in the repainting and decorating of the walls and ceiling, while the capitals of the posts supporting the balcony will be daintily tinted in gold.

The woodwork will be enameled in white and give a brighter air to the chamber while the hole in the ceiling over the useless balcony will be mended.

No plans have been decided on as to the exact color scheme which will be carried out, but alderman Percy McGhee will decide on this before advertising for bids. However, it is proposed to make the hall brighter.

No repairs have been made on the interior of the city hall for the past five years. The walls are cracked, and dirty with the accumulated dust of years, and it is probable that a vacuum cleaner will be purchased to keep it clean after the new coat of paint is put on.

OBJECTS TO UNLOADING OF PRISONERS ON OVERLAND
Fitzgerald Moor appeared before the city council this morning to register a complaint against the unloading of prisoners on Overland street, but did not take the matter up with the council. This has not been done and he says that his tenants complain about the noise of prisoners unloaded in front of his rooming house.
